

EFFECTIVE COMMUNICATION SKILLS

Guided by effective communication skills, I-Systems nursing students are trained to develop self-assertiveness and confidence in managing patient care, particularly during nursing handovers. This critical process involves conveying essential information such as patients' medical histories, current conditions, treatment plans, and other key details to ensure continuity and safety in patient care.

Effective communication skills

To cultivate professional nursing responsibilities, students undergo comprehensive training in both communication and practical clinical skills. This training emphasizes the importance of focus, clarity, timeliness, and organizational discipline in delivering high-quality care.
