

Multilingual Mandarin Speaking

At I-Systems, we actively encourage our student nurses to become multilingual by learning and speaking Mandarin, Bahasa Malaysia, and English. Language is a fundamental and powerful tool in healthcare communication, and mastering multiple languages not only enhances students' confidence and self-esteem but also gives them a distinct competitive advantage in their careers.

Interactive Communication Skills Class

Effective communication is crucial in nursing, and language barriers between nurses and patients can compromise patient safety and care outcomes. Being multilingual enables nurses to bridge these gaps—particularly when gathering medical histories, understanding symptoms, or conveying critical information.

To support this goal, our nursing students participate in English and Mandarin communication classes designed to strengthen their multilingual abilities and prepare them for diverse clinical environments.
