

Public speaking skills in English

Nursing students at I-Systems actively engage in participatory communication skills classes to enhance their public speaking abilities in English. Developing strong public speaking skills empowers students to overcome fear, communicate with confidence in various settings, and build greater self-assurance.

Effective public speaking enables our student nurses to express their thoughts clearly and accurately while deepening their understanding of relevant topics that contribute meaningfully to the nursing profession. Moreover, being multilingual helps to bridge communication gaps, reducing language barriers that could otherwise impact patient safety and care outcomes.
